

New science, clear guidance – better for my health

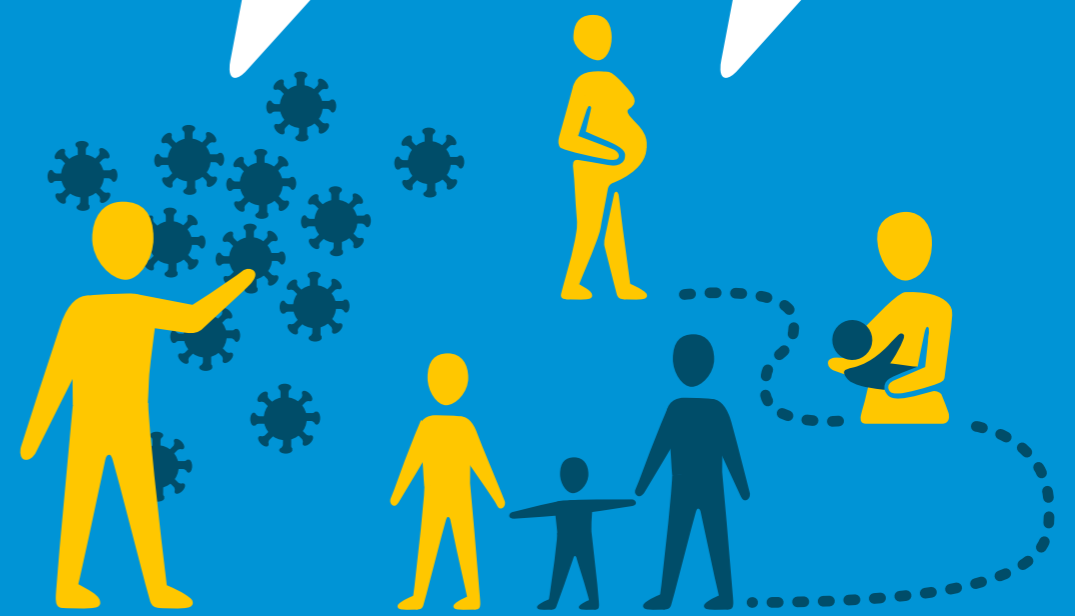

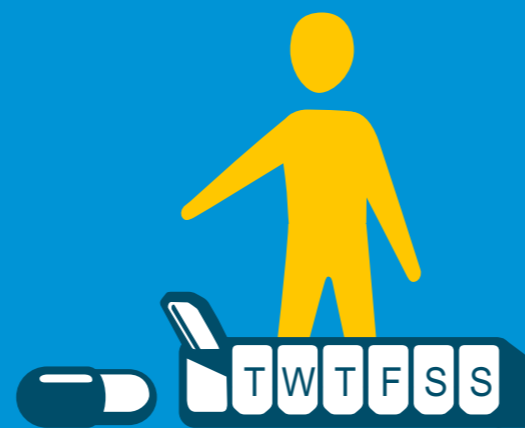

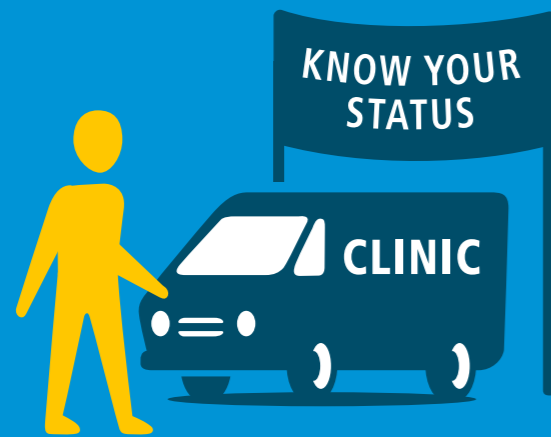

With HIV testing and counselling being provided in my community, I can know my HIV status earlier

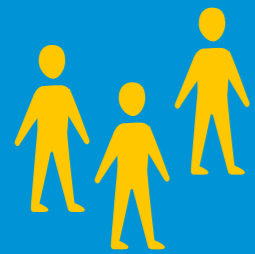

If I am HIV positive, I can start my treatment earlier to stop me getting sick and reduce the risk of passing HIV to my sexual partner or unborn child

I can demand simpler, safer, once-a-day, single pill treatment – no more second-rate drugs for me

My doctor should check my viral load as it is the best test available for making sure my treatment is working well for me

If I am HIV positive and pregnant, I can demand lifelong treatment to keep me healthy and prevent my baby from getting HIV

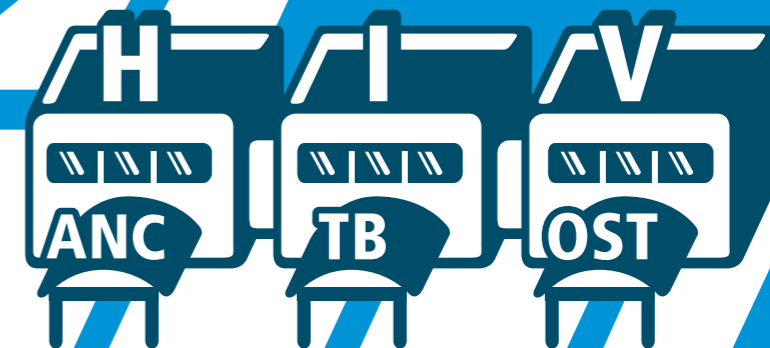

Improving health services – reaching my community

I will no longer need to pay to travel far for my healthcare – more HIV services are available at primary healthcare clinics

All my health needs will be responded to effectively – linking HIV services with antenatal care, TB treatment, opioid substitution therapy

I will not have to queue for hours just to get my pills for next month – community health workers can now dispense them

Health programmes designed with us and for ALL

My government must:

Meaningfully involve us to further build our ability to develop, implement and monitor health policies and programmes

Plan health programmes and policies based on evidence and data not ideology or politics

Uphold principles of ethics, equity and human rights – not deny or disregard key populations
